What's in a name? Hope, pain, power

This may be the last year the names of the nearly 3,000 killed are read aloud ● Bloomberg says he'll talk to families and ask what they want

EMILY ANNE EPSTEIN/METRO

▶ Security guard Dario Torres, 21, and Brooklyn student Suqi Grant, 21, hold a candle on Church Street yesterday and listen as the names of the dead are read.

Family members of victims wept as the names of the nearly 3,000 people who lost their lives on Sept. 11 were read aloud during yesterday's memorial service.

But those names may not be heard at future 9/11 memorials.

The city and the National September 11 Memorial & Museum board of directors — of which Mayor Michael Bloomberg is the chair — said they will begin surveying family members to see if they want the names of those killed read in future years.

Quoted

"It took us 10 years to catch bin Laden and it just takes a couple of hours to read the names. [They] are the reason people are fighting so hard to keep our freedoms." SUQI GRANT

"A decision has not been made and family members will be consulted before one is," said mayoral spokesman Andrew Brent yesterday.

One proposed idea is that there will still be a ceremony in years to come, just one without the hours of name-reading.

The family members who lost loved ones were mixed on the idea of nixing the names.

"I think it's important to this family [to read the names]," said Sandy Williams who lost her nephew, Brian Patrick Williams, on 9/11. "I think the name is important because it's recognizing what they went through."

But other family members said they wouldn't mind if the names weren't read again in future ceremonies.

"I think I'd be okay with it," said Kelly Mladenik, the daughter of American Airlines Flight 11 passenger Jeffrey Mladenik. "Life goes on, as awful as it is and the cards that are dealt ... life goes on."

CASSANDRA GARRISON with Emily Anne Epstein

Metro question

We asked: How do you feel about a discontinuation of the 9/11 name-reading ceremony?

Morell Cole, a Brooklyn resident, lost her uncle in the attacks.
"They've said the names for 10 years. I appreciate it and it's been done, but I think we can move on to different types of ceremonies."

Kelly Mladenik lost her father on board American Airlines Flight 11.
"Life goes on, as awful as it is and the cards that are dealt ... life goes on. We learned to cope and live our lives, the way he'd want us to."

Andrea Villa lost her sister-in-law, Sharon
"Even though it's a long time that it takes, we still have a special feeling when we hear her name. One of my children would like to do that — read her name — now that she's old enough to do it."

Alonzo Davis lost his brother, Clinton Davis, a Port Authority police officer, in the attacks.
"It's getting tiring. This will be my last event, the 10th year, because it's too much, really ... drama for the whole family."

Hardest hit firehouse mourns hard

The 15 firefighters who were lost to Engine 4 in Midtown Manhattan were mourned yesterday in a special ceremony. Nearly 300 people attended the service, according to the New York Post. A new plaque, inscribed with each man's name, was displayed. METRO/EAE

An empty park of memories

BRYANT PARK. In honor of the 10th anniversary of Sept. 11, 2,753 chairs were placed in Bryant Park yesterday, one for each victim of the attacks. Near the chairs, a row of manual typewriters were available for people to respond to the question "What would you like the world to remember about 9/11?" The exhibit, called "Collective Memory," was created by artist Sheryl Oring. METRO/EAE

More than 5,000 people joined hands in Lower Manhattan on Saturday morning to remember those killed in the Sept. 11 attacks. The event, called the "Chain of Humanity," stretched from Battery Park City up along the Hudson River to the North Cove Marina, by the World Financial Center. METRO/CB

Oh say can you sing?

QUEENS. Cyndi Lauper became the latest celebrity to flub the words to the national anthem while performing at the U.S. Open on Saturday night in Flushing Meadows. Lauper sang "The Star-Spangled Banner" before the women's semifinal match. But instead of singing "were so gallantly streaming," Lauper instead crowed "as our flag was still streaming."

Find a friend: Adopt a pet

ASPCA

▶ Hazel is looking for a new home and owners who have lots of energy to play with her.

Adopt a pet with the New York City ASPCA and Metro

Once a week Metro features an animal you can adopt from the ASPCA. This week, say hello to Hazel!

Hazel is a friendly and playful 1-year-old domestic shorthair mix looking for someone to take her home. She will have tons of fun during playtime, but hasn't quite learned that hands are not her toys. She might play a bit rough when she's feeling playful but her adopter can help break her of this habit by always playing with her using approved toys. She gets disappointed if her playtime ends, so if she plays too rough simply walk away and she will learn to be more gentle next time. She has a ton of energy, so tiring her out with fun and exciting play each night would be best. Her favorite toys include hanging string-type toys for chase-and-pounce games so have plenty of those handy!

Hazel would be best in a home with children 10 and up because she still needs to learn her manners. If you're looking for a fun and energetic exercise partner, Hazel could be perfect for you.

Bring her home!

Hazel is spayed and up-to-date on all vaccinations. We also include a microchip and free follow-up vet exam. So stop by the ASPCA Adoption Center and take your new best friend home today.

HS sports star shot to death

NEW YORK. Tayshana Murphy, a highly touted basketball player at Murry Bergtraum High School, was shot to death in a New York apartment building yesterday morning.

The 18-year-old was killed by a gunman in a hallway of her home, a housing project in Harlem's Morningside Heights neighborhood.

Murphy may have been the victim of mistaken identity, according to multiple reports.

"It's very devastating, it's something you never want to deal with," said Murphy's Murry Bergtraum coach, Ed Grezinsky, according to ESPN. "You deal with all kinds of things and adversity as a coach, injuries and all kinds of family issues, but something like this is beyond comprehension. Somebody that is young like that and has everything to live for."

Murphy was cited as one of the top female basketball prospects in the New York City by the New York Daily News. REUTERS

Quoted

"I spoke to her last week and I said 'Are you ready for this season?' And she said, 'I can't wait.'" GREZINSKY

Green cats could give AIDS hope

U.S. scientists have developed a strain of green-glowing cats with cells that resist infection from a virus that causes feline AIDS, a finding that may help prevent the disease in cats and advance AIDS research in people.

The study, published yesterday in the journal Nature Methods, involved inserting monkey genes that block the virus into feline eggs, or oocytes, before they are fertilized.

The scientists also inserted jellyfish genes that make the modified cells glow an eerie green color – making the altered genes easy to spot.

Tests on cells taken from the cats show they are resistant to feline immunodeficiency virus, or FIV, which causes AIDS in cats.

"This provides the unprecedented capability to study the effects of giving AIDS-protection genes into an AIDS-vulnerable animal," Dr. Eric Poeschla of the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., who led the study, said.

Poeschla said that besides people, cats, and to some extent, chimpanzees, are the only mammals that develop a naturally occurring virus that causes AIDS.

Just as HIV does in people, the feline equivalent works by wiping out infection-fighting T-cells. REUTERS

9/11 over, terror threat still stands

Officials warn Americans to stay alert ◗ Suspicious trucks found in New York, Boston ◗ Incident in the sky

John Brennan, President Barack Obama's counterterrorism adviser, said U.S. officials are working "'round the clock" to investigate a "specific and credible" threat of a terrorist attack against Washington or New York, even in the days after Sept. 11.

The terror threat concerns a possible vehicle-borne attack, sponsored by al-Qaeda, against New York or Washington.

President Barack Obama met with his national security team yesterday morning, to review the intelligence and ensure U.S. officials were pursuing all possible leads, Brennan said.

Over the weekend, the NYPD investigated the theft of three vans in possible connection with the terror threat, as two of the vans were stolen from a contracting company that did work at the World Trade Center site.

One of the vans was recovered yesterday in Queens. Police believe it was stolen not for terrorism purposes, but rather for the $60,000 worth of tools and equipment inside.

Police in Massachusetts yesterday also canceled a statewide search for a rental truck after it was found.

On Saturday night, someone saw men loading 55-gallon drums into a Penske truck and called police, who then raced to find the truck.

But it was determined that the truck was merely picking up charitable goods and donations, from different parts of the city, according to Boston police.

Military escort

American Airlines Flight 34 required two F-16 fighter jets to escort the plane on its trip from Los Angeles to New York City yesterday afternoon after three passengers locked themselves in the bathroom and refused to come out. The flight landed without incident just after 4 p.m. at JFK.

9/11 race

Three Metro readers chosen from more than 100 applicants completed the Civilian Military Combine on Saturday, a race held in honor of 9/11 victims.

1: Esther Carpenter raised $1,200 for the FDNY Burn Center and ran the race in 2:15.

2: Rob Hawthorn raised $2,000 for the Semper Fi Fund and came in 27th place overall.

3: Sean Smith raised $1,500. He completed the race in 2:49.

Say "No" to the Mask

Are you one of the millions of people who snore and refuse to wear the mask? Or do you currently wear a mask but need an alternative?

There is a solution.

Our specialists at the Manhattan Snoring & Sleep Center only treat snoring and sleep apnea.

Taking a minimally invasive, in-office approach allows you to get quick, safe and affordable treatment, avoid painful surgery and cumbersome masks.

WHY WAIT?

Going untreated is not an option. Ignoring your sleep apnea can lead to serious health issues.

Sleep is not a luxury... It's a necessity.

You don't have to live with the mask.

We can tailor a plan to treat your sleep apnea, and give you the quality sleep you need.

Our Aim is to Beat Most Offers!

We Strive to Beat All Legitimate Written Offers

Before Bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have them give you legitimate offers in writing. Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular time, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

Why We Can Usually Pay More Than Other Dealers

Most jewelers and dealers specialize in few items and focus on newer looking items to resell. Because they are unfamiliar with many other items including vintage jewelry, old watches, coins, flatware, etc. they tend to offer very low prices because these items are not readily saleable for them. Our company has many specialized buyers for the various classifications of items that we purchase, therefore we can usually pay more.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition. The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

Most of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our showrooms are safe and private. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

Why You Should Sell Now!

The Economy & Market Value
The recent downturn of our economy during the last three years has caused gold and other precious metal prices to soar to the highest levels of all time. This is the reason this is best time to sell before prices drop.

Get Cash Immediately
Our professional staff will provide you with a speedy evaluation and make all payments in cash.

No Charge
We do not charge for our consultations. Find out how much cash your unwanted items will put in your pocket. Many customers have been surprised and delighted by the amount of money they received.

Safe, Secure & Friendly
Our showrooms are safe and private. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

Licensed, Bonded & Insured
We are licensed, bonded and insured in all cities and towns in which we conduct business.

Help the Environment
Using recycled precious metals for jewelry is an important way for jewelers to source precious metals more responsibly. Precious metals that have already been used in some way, including "vintage," "renewed," or "reclaimed" metals from jewelry and electronics, are not directly implicated in the destructive impacts of mining. They do not share responsibility for the impacts of mining in the same way that newly mined gold does.

10 years after 9/11: 'It doesn't get any easier'

Emotional day reveals a nation still in mourning ◗ Family members say they are haunted by painful memories — and for some, being there yesterday was just too much ◗ People came from across the world to remember

Yesterday's 10-year anniversary of the Sept. 11 attacks revealed a fresh wound that for some — even a decade later — never quite healed.

"It's been hard for the family. I moved out of the country for six years because of 9/11," said Shana Skinner.

Skinner, a New York City resident, recalled lifting the miniblinds in the window of her Manhattan apartment just in time to see the second plane crash into the South Tower. It's a memory that is just as vivid today as it was on Sept. 12, 2001.

Her uncle, Walter Arthur McNeil, was killed that day.

It's still too painful for McNeil's daughter to attend the memorial service, said Skinner.

"His daughter is still going through it," she said. "That's why she's not here today."

It is not just family members of victims who continue to be profoundly moved by the memory of 9/11. Sunday's service drew people from across the country and across the world who came to mourn the lives lost that day.

"I wish my dad had been there to teach me how to drive, ask a girl out on a date and see me graduate from high school and a hundred other things I can't even begin to name ... I hope that I can make my father proud."

PETER NEGRON, WHOSE FATHER, PETE, DIED IN THE WTC ATTACK

"It's been like this for 10 years," said Ernesto Perez of the intense emotion connected to the date of 9/11. He traveled to New York City from Placerville, Calif., to mark the anniversary.

"I just wanted to feel whatever it is we all feel in mourning," he said.

Outside the ceremony in the public viewing area, firefighter James Brady, a New Jersey resident, was one of the first responders to the scene on 9/11. He cried openly yesterday as the names of the dead were read.

"Year to year, it doesn't get any easier," he said. "But it's not about us."

Sunday's ceremony at the World Trade Center began just after 8:30 a.m. with a processional. President Obama and first lady Michelle Obama were joined by former President George W. Bush and former first lady Laura Bush.

Bells tolled during moments of silence observed throughout the morning to mark each time a plane struck a tower, the Pentagon, the field in Shanksville, Pa., and when each tower fell.

The name of each victim was read aloud by family members in between performances by musicians including Yo-Yo Ma, James Taylor and Paul Simon. Thousands of people migrated in and around the World Trade Center to observe the ceremony, many of them clutching photos of loved ones who were lost, but not forgotten.

First responders join to remember victims

For many first responders, standing on the same ground where they tried in vain to save 2,749 people brought back haunting memories yesterday.

Responders told Metro that hearing the names of those killed brought back vivid scenes of helping — and being helpless.

"I saw the south tower fall first, which blew me into One Financial Center," recalled first responder Kevin Frazier, who said he was one of the first at the foot of the World Trade Center as the two towers burned.

He comes every year to the service to pay his respects, he said, and remember.

Upstate paramedic Jeff Sitterly arrived the week after Sept. 11 to help firefighters as they combed through the wreckage. "At that point we were just there for the recovery," he said.

He tries to attend the memorial services every year. "It's been very emotional for me to be here, and it's something I feel like I should do as often as I can."

Some responders like FDNY veteran James O'Brien, moved to Florida after the 9/11 attacks, where his wife Tina said she now feels safe. They returned to the city for the anniversary. "There's no place else," she said.

Many responders were upset they could not attend the actual ceremony. Mayor Michael Bloomberg said family members were the priority, and so many of them wanted to attend it left little room for anyone else. First responders instead gathered at Zuccotti Park near the World Trade Center, where the city set aside space for them to watch. The FDNY also hosted their own 10-year anniversary ceremony Saturday at St. Patrick's Cathedral. Others chose to honor the 343 fallen at their own fire houses. The NYPD held its memorial ceremony Thursday. METRO/AB

▶ Because the World Trade Center is still an active construction site, visitors need to reserve passes in advance. Passes are available at 911memorial.org, and visitors must give a specific time to visit. Book early, as the memorial has already received thousands of requests. The next time available to visit the museum is Sept. 27.

9/11 memorial opens to the public

Today, for the first time, the National September 11 Memorial will open its gates to the public and show the nation what millions have waited a decade to see: The final resting place for the nearly 3,000 people killed in the attacks.

The memorial officially opened yesterday at the Sept. 11 ceremony, but only family members of those who perished in the attacks were allowed in.

Today the memorial opens, but only to those visitors who have reserved passes in advance. Sign up began back in July for the more than 1,000 visitors expected to stream into the site daily.

Memorial design

The memorial features two granite pools each an acre in size, with 30-foot waterfalls. The pools are surrounded by swamp white oak trees, and one callery pear tree, the "survivor tree" that made it through the Sept. 11 attacks.

Along the memorial walls yesterday, which are inscribed with the names of those killed, some family members touched their relatives' names and left flowers by the etched letters. Many rubbed over the names with white paper and pencil.

One family member spoke privately to Metro about her satisfaction at finally seeing the long-awaited memorial completed.

"We were finally able to have a little bit of rest because we saw her name at the waterfall and they never had found her. So it was something for us to go on," said Andrea Villa, a Long Island resident whose husband's sister, Sharon Villa, died in the 9/11 attacks. Sharon Villa is one of the nearly 1,000 9/11 victims whose remains were never recovered.

The National September 11 Museum, which is located on the memorial, is slated to open in one year, in September 2012.

MEMORABLE QUOTES FROM YESTERDAY'S SERVICE

"Ten years have passed since a perfect blue sky morning turned into the blackest of nights. Since then we've lived in sunshine and in shadow, and although we can never unsee what happened here, we can also see that children who lost their parents have grown into young adults, grandchildren have been born and good works and public service have taken root to honor those we loved and lost."

Solemn gathering marks Flight 93 crash in Pennsylvania

By 10:03 a.m. — the moment when the Boeing 757 passenger jet slammed into the field in Shanksville, Pa. — the sun warmed the faces of those who marked the anniversary.

President Barack Obama arrived at midday to lay a wreath.

The president and the first lady, Michelle Obama, walked to the boulder that marks the approximate site where the airplane crashed and then spent about 45 minutes talking with family members of the passengers and crew members who died.

Flight 93, bound for San Francisco from Newark, N.J., never hit its intended target — investigators believe the hijackers were planning to crash into either the U.S. Capitol or the White House — because some of the passengers stormed the cockpit and attempted, unsuccessfully, to regain control of the aircraft.

Pennsylvania Gov. Tom Corbett said their actions, which caused the plan to crash, "set a new standard for American bravery."

Paul Greengrass, who directed a feature film about Flight 93, said the passengers' achievement seems even more extraordinary today than it was a decade ago.

New York's streets see global pain

- Foreigners jet-set to tragedy

Yesterday, people from across the country — and the world — completed a pilgrimage to New York City to witness the power of the 10th anniversary of Sept. 11.

"I needed to be here to support the families of the victims," said Angela Forrey, 30, who flew to New York from Cleveland, Ohio, specifically for the memorial service, which she watched from the street. She got to Lower Manhattan early in the morning to secure a spot in the front of the space roped off for public viewing. "It sounds cliche, but I'll never forget. I wish I could have been here to help."

Forrey is not alone. Students Denislav Eftimo, 26, and Weichiao Lin, 22, flew from Bulgaria to be in Manhattan for the 10th anniversary.

"When I heard the names," Eftimo said of his experience. "It felt like I lost someone in my family."

JILL GWEN

Jill Gwen and Stanley Bernard, the founding minister and the president of Go Soular, a nonprofit religious aid organization, flew in from California.

They wept uncontrollably during the reading of the victims' names — yet knew no one who perished.

"My heart bleeds for people still in pain," said Gwen. "We wanted to be a part of history."

Antonio Ricman was in town from Switzerland.

"I'm really touched by what's happening today; to see how the families are grieving," he said. "I understand it's a very big day for America."

When The Biebs met The Wintour

On Thursday night, during Fashion's Night Out, Dolce & Gabbana's Madison Avenue shop turned from hosting a sophisticated soiree to an absolute madhouse once Justin Bieber showed up. Decked head to toe in the designer, Bieber brought the paparazzi — and hoards of screaming young fans (they were lining up to buy $195 D&G autographed shirts; a portion of proceeds went to Bieber's favorite charity). Other big names at the FNO event included Tyson Beckford, Chase Crawford, Brooklyn Decker, Sophia Bush, Usher and Anna Wintour.

Beckford chatted with Metro on his style muse: "I'm inspired by walking down the street every day," he said. "I'm inspired by other guys, how they dress. [But] I really want to do this [Dolce & Gabbana] James Bond tuxedo, that thing is sick."

▶ Brooklyn Decker, Justin Bieber and Anna Wintour at Fashion's Night Out. Below, an artistic rendering of the results if Bieber and Wintour swapped hair styles.

When we finally got through the throngs of reporters, we asked Bieber what was one item he couldn't live without. And he actually had a sensible answer: "My shoes," he said. He even gabbed a bit about recording two new albums, saying, "I've been focusing a lot on my Christmas album. I'm excited about the final outcome."

And although our reporter couldn't hear what was said when the superstar actually met Anna Wintour at the event, let's hope it had something to do with one day swapping their iconic hairstyles.

Gaga goes vamp?

Even trendsetter Lady Gaga is partaking in the vampire trend, as it appears she has a new man in her life: "Vampire Diaries" star Taylor Kinney. According to Radar Online, the two met when Kinney was cast in the video for Gaga's new single, "You and I." Things seem to have gotten more serious, according to a source who spotted the pair out at a seaside bar in California recently. "It was just casual at first, but things are getting pretty hot and heavy," the source says. "I couldn't tell it was her at first. It just looked like some hot couple making out."

Talking points

Madonna, the ultimate cougar

Her directing work may be receiving lukewarm reviews, but Madonna has other career opportunities, apparently. Dating website CougarLife.com has reportedly approached the singer about becoming its spokeswoman, explaining that Madonna is "without a doubt the queen of cougars." The site is offering her $300,000, plus an additional $750,000 if she releases a song by Valentine's Day for the site.

Leonardo DiCaprio, a thief?

A jewelry store employee in Sydney, Australia, thought she was about to be robbed recently when a man entered wearing a hoodie, baseball cap and sunglasses, but it turns out it was just Leonardo DiCaprio, according to Hollyscoop. Before realizing her mistake, the clerk sent a customer to alert the shop's owner. "The customer actually leaned in and said, 'Do you want me to call the police?'" the other store's owner says. "So she rushed in next door, and said, you know, 'There might be a holdup next door.'" The $1,600 necklace that DiCaprio ended up purchasing was a gift for his mom and not rumored girlfriend Blake Lively, according to the store employees.

Madonna

Reese Witherspoon won't sue

Reese Witherspoon is looking to move on after getting hit by a car last week, and the Oscar winner is not planning to press charges, according to People magazine. But that doesn't mean the 84-year-old driver is in the clear, as she was still cited for failing to yield to a pedestrian in a crosswalk. Witherspoon was treated for minor injuries.

One way or another

Debbie Harry and Blondie move forward, embrace technology and team up with Amazon for 'Panic of Girls'

Few would call Debbie Harry a geek, but the gorgeous Blondie singer has no problem with technology. In fact, she's always embraced electronic innovation.

"That's part of our business, really. We rely on technology to produce our music and perform concerts. A lot of our instruments are tied to computer or synthesizer technology. The change from analog to digital, that was a big change. But it's sort of more natural in a way; it's the way the brain actually operates, instead of the old mechanical way. I don't feel like a Luddite in any way," she declares.

Personal evolution is important, too; so the band's fall tour is not about revisiting their splendid hit songs like "Heart of Glass" or "Dreaming." The New York City-based new wave pop veterans' new album, "Panic of Girls," is out this month to add new sounds.

"I think that's the best part of it," Harry says of recording a new album. "We are in a very cushy position, because we are well known. But going around playing the older hits and everything wouldn't be, oh, I don't know … it just wouldn't be as inspiring or interesting as trying to make new music. Let's face it: As our lives change, our experiences change and our insights improve. It's more relevant to sing or talk about things that are happening today. The world is changing so quickly. The difference in communications since the Internet came into being — the world is so different now and we're a part of it."

"Panic of Girls" is exclusively available through Amazon starting tomorrow. Debbie Harry explains the partnership:

"Because we're independent, we don't have any distribution — so it's an ideal situation for us. On a personal level, I've been dealing with Amazon as a consumer for a long time. Anytime I've gotten anything from Amazon, it's been quick and painless."

David Ellis: From snakes on planes to sharks in 3-D

With summer coming to an end, it's the perfect time for a movie to scare you off the beach. Here to do it is "Shark Night 3D," from "Snakes on a Plane" director David Ellis.

Metro caught up with Ellis and one of the flick's stars, "American Idol" runner-up Katharine McPhee, to see what secrets about the film they're willing to spill. As it turns out, not many.

STEVE DIETL © 2011 INCENTIVE FILM PRODUCTIONS, LLC

What can you tell us, without giving too much away, about "Shark Night 3D"?

DE: There's sharks in it. (Laughs) It's really weird. And a lot of the movie takes place at night.

KM: I'm in it.

DE: Kat's in it.

David, you're no stranger to genre movies. What's their appeal to a filmmaker?

DE: For me, I think it's just fun to be able to entertain people — for them to be able to go and escape from everything crazy that's going on in the world for an hour and a half and go have fun. To kind of scare them and make them laugh and make them cry, and just kind of play with their emotions.

KM: You like making people cry.

Were you afraid of sharks before you made the movie?

KM: I'm one of those people who, especially as a kid, would spend hours in the ocean swimming. I love swimming. But always in the back of my head, there was that fear of a shark coming and getting you.

DE: For me, I grew up in the ocean as well — my whole life in Malibu — and I'm aware of them, you respect them. But you have a better chance of getting hit by a coconut than getting killed by a shark. But it's a primal fear for people.

How creative do you get with the deaths in the movie?

DE: Pretty creative. Each one is different and unique. And what's cool about it is we had so many different types of sharks.

'Contagion' takes hold of the box office

Deadly virus thriller "Contagion" caught on with filmgoers and easily took the top spot at the weekend box office in the United States and Canada, according to studio estimates compiled by Reuters yesterday.

"Contagion" brought in $23.1 million in ticket sales over its first three days of release, distributor Warner Bros. says. The film tells the story of the race to contain a lethal virus that is quickly circling the globe.

"The Help," a surprise summer hit about black maids in civil rights-era Mississippi, slipped to second place after three straight weeks at No. 1. The film rung up $8.7 million over the weekend.

"Warrior," a new drama about two brothers who battle in a mixed martial arts tournament, pulled in $5.6 million to finish in third place.

Warner Bros., a unit of Time Warner Inc, released "Contagion." Lions Gate Entertainment distributed "Warrior." "The Help" was produced by DreamWorks and distributed by Walt Disney Co. REUTERS

Justin Timberlake, 'Boardwalk Empire' win at creative Emmys

HBO's prohibition-era series "Boardwalk Empire" and 1930s drama "Mildred Pierce" both got off to a good start in their bid for next week's main Emmy awards. "Boardwalk Empire" walked off with a leading seven Emmys in the creative arts portion of the Primetime Emmy Awards on Saturday, while "Mildred Pierce," starring Kate Winslet, won three.

▶ Steve Buscemi stars in "Boardwalk Empire."
CRAIG BLANKENHORN

Singer Justin Timberlake took home two more Emmys in his burgeoning career as a comedic actor. The 30-year-old already has two Emmys for his previous work on "Saturday Night Live." He won the guest comedy actor Emmy for hosting the season finale of "SNL" in May, and shared another for co-writing the original song in his opening monologue for the show.

Some 76 awards were announced in categories ranging from costumes and picture-editing to reality host ahead of the main acting, comedy and drama series awards ceremony on Sept. 18. REUTERS

Growing up, privately

Offspring of famous folks, the collaborators behind 'Tanner Hall' grew up in private schools Now they put their lives, or a version of it, onscreen

In "Tanner Hall," first-time writer-directors Francesca Gregorini (Ringo's stepdaughter) and Tatiana von Furstenberg (Diane's daughter) present a lyrical look at adolescence through the eyes of four students at an all-girls boarding school in New England. (Rooney Mara, star of the forthcoming "The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo," leads the cast.) Coincidentally, the longtime friends met as students at a private school, but they insist the story isn't autobiographical — not exactly, anyway.

FOR THE COMPLETE INTERVIEW, VISIT WWW.METRO.US/MOVIES

How much of the film is drawn from personal experience?

FG: All the characters are composites. They're composites of ourselves, friends we had, friends we have.

TVF: And just culture in general. We can mine from a friendship that dates way back. We met at the age that those girls were, so our references are there.

FG: We're everywhere on that screen. When you are the writer-directors, every frame has all of you in it. A lot of the things that the girls are wearing are from Tatiana's closet. It's hard not to infiltrate pretty much all of it.

Have you warned friends not to look for themselves in characters?

TVF: No. We had to raise the stakes and the drama a lot. We've definitely lived the emotional truth of all the characters, but not the situations.

You have elements from several decades in the film to create a kind of timelessness.

FG: It's more like a folklore.

TVF: I was trying very hard to realign materialism and teen culture stereotypes. Like, you can't just buy stuff and become that person.

FG: The movie is not about cell phones and this and that. It's about relationships and connecting. We tried to make an artful movie about coming of age that was not stereotypical or had any sort of moral judgment. It's good and bad and everything in between, and that's OK.

Highbrow trumps Hollywood at Venice Film Festival

Smaller films reigned at the Venice film festival this year, with Russian director Alexander Sokurov's demanding German-language "Faust" taking top prize and Roman Polanski and George Clooney overlooked.

Most prizes at Saturday's closing ceremony went to less-than-familiar names and faces, with the exception of rising Irish star Michael Fassbender's best actor award for "Shame." The Silver Lion for best director was awarded to China's Shangjun Cai for his gritty "People Mountain People Sea," best actress went to Hong Kong's Deanie Ip and the jury prize went to Italian immigration drama "Terraferma."

Surprisingly overlooked was Polanski's "Carnage," a comedy of manners featuring a stellar cast of Jodie Foster, Kate Winslet, Christoph Waltz and John C. Reilly. Clooney's political thriller "The Ides of March," which was well received and stars Clooney as a governor embroiled in scandal during an election race, also went home empty-handed.

While Venice is not a platform for blockbusters, it has proved an effective launchpad for Oscar contenders like Ang Lee's "Brokeback Mountain" and Darren Aronofsky's "Black Swan." REUTERS

Breakfast with Anna dello Russo

The Fashion Week pro on her new clothing line and dressing to the max What's in her suitcases

Anna dello Russo, she of the giant fruit-shaped headpieces and brazenly over-the-top outfits, has a blog-ebrity that grows with each Fashion Week. Her Fashion's Night Out party with Macy's to celebrate her collaboration with the clothing line INC was one of the most jam-packed of the night. We met up the morning before to talk bijoux, maximalism and the high/low revolution.

Between the Karl Lagerfeld collaboration and your

Suno

There was much to love about the Suno duo's spring collection: polished, printed midi-length dresses and crisp, white lace with multi-striped looks, to name a few. But we missed their trademark overtly ethnic prints. Overall, Max Osterweis and Erin Beatty's work is evolving into a more grown-up and sophisticated place that feels a little less quirky and madcap than seasons past.

partnership with INC, this feels like Macy's week. Why do you think the phenomenon of high/low collaborations is reaching its tipping point?
I think it's a reaction to the Web revolution. When Macy's approached me, I was not that surprised because I am the link between the old and the new world of fashion. Because I started to blog when nobody at this level was really doing it. There is change in the air, this phenomenon. I think [these brands] are changing their level of communication by trying to put the high quality in mass market.
Would you say that you've influenced the current maximal moment in fashion?
I hope so. But I think in fashion you give and you get. I was feeling that it was time to put all of this bijoux, stuff like that, on, because we didn't see this in a long time. It was time to go back to this maximalism. But I don't pretend to influence fashion. I can just be the witness to it. I just catch it. Now you can see many, many accessory brands coming back with hats, costume jewelry — and I think I'm a witness to this moment.
How do you pack for the four fashion weeks?
I always do a pit stop in Milan, like Formula One. I can't survive more than one week. I have to go back to Milan and change my luggage. It's quite a big job. It looks like an editorial shooting. My fashion month is kind of like my issue, my personal magazine. I have to take care of it.
Do you change your level of dress from city to city? Do you go all out in Paris as opposed to, say, New York?
Before, I used to dress quite different for each city; but now it's from the top to the top to the top to the top. [Laughs] I want to look different and project myself. It's about impact.

1 Alexander Wang
The details are what made Wang's part-sporty, part-"Fast and Furious" (complete with graphic BMX helmets) clothes stand out from the other athletic-flavored looks we've seen this week. The word "technical" appeared throughout his press notes for a reason: The collection was filled with small design feats, from his mesh laser-cut utility shorts — which featured pockets that cleverly revealed the hands tucked inside — to the sheer inserts on a cargo skirt printed in Hawaiian style florals, an early contender for the best print of the season. KENYA HUNT

2 Jason Wu
Sporty and street are not exactly words that come to mind when you think of Michelle Obama's go-to designer, and yet he was able to own both ideas by interpreting them in his own polished, Wu-ian way. The beauty is that he experimented with the sporty trend in a way that didn't read too literal. For instance, his lightweight, practically transparent parkas gave his bejeweled collared shirts and short-short pairings a subtle urban edge. The street references surfaced in the floral prints with hand-drawn graphics he commissioned from the graffiti artist Kaws, an industry favorite. It all made for an impressive sign of growth for the designer and should expand his following even more. METRO/KH

Yigal Azrouel
For the girl who can't afford Celine, there's Yigal Azrouel's spring collection, which delivers a dose of similar minimalist cool. His girl doesn't need a ton of embellishments to look like the baddest chick in the room — but those round-framed sunglasses that the models wore certainly helped. The show started off strong with simple, tailored separates in white and nudes; the pieces borrowed from menswear but still oozed sensuality thanks to high slits, feminine draping and the use of fabrics such as silk chiffon. Other standouts included bold-colored suits, boxy jackets and chic trench coats in canvas or leather. TINA CHADHA

3 Rebecca Taylor
This season, Rebecca Taylor's signature feminine dresses and skirts came down the runway in patchworks of silk, python print and sheer fabric — sometimes worn with slouchy jackets for a more relaxed edge. For night (or day, depending on how brave you are) there were shimmery pearl sequined pants and blouses with pailettes. Occasional pops of bright lemon and lime added a jolt of the unexpected. TINA CHADHA

4 Helmut Lang
For the first half of the show, creative directors Nicole and Michael Colovos deftly played with contrasting colors (looks were either all black, all white or black and white, with a yellow moment worked in) and lengths (the hemlines on tops, skirts and dresses rose high on one side and dipped low on the other). But the dressier second half of the show — sexy, fluid jackets and draped dresses, some with burned out patches — was the biggest hit. METRO/KH

▶ Stop by Nicola's at 50 Walker St., which is up until Sept. 21.

Nicola Formichetti is working the sales floor at his pop-up shop with BOFFO in Tribeca, where shoppers can buy cool, limited-edition merch, including Formichetti-designed outfits for their avatars. We stopped by.

1 As Lady Gaga's stylist, are you looking at young designers during NYFW for inspiration?
Of course. I'm always looking. If I have a bit of time to spare from the store — I'm going to be here all the time — I'll have a look around.

2 Where do you usually look for her ensembles?
Tumblr.

3 It's been very rainy in NYC. What would you recommend an editor wear during a wet Fashion Week?
A rubber mask!

4 What are you like as a retail store employee?
I'm a very good shop salesperson. I come from the shop floor. I'm very charming and honest.

Hello, purple! Gurung's collection of mostly party looks, which showcased the color as well as a floral print, took a 180 from the ruffles and bows that made him a red-carpet designer of choice for ladies like Michelle Obama and Sarah Jessica Parker. This season, his looks featured erotic cut-outs, peek-a-boo, sheer panels and even latex. The collection might be cool, but it definitely looked like it was designed by a different person — which isn't surprising, considering the meteoric path of his rising star.

6 ADAM
There are those days when you want to stay in your pajamas. And then there are those pajamas that are so beautiful, you never want to take them off. Adam Lippes' spring collection was inspired by the High Line and the fashionable people who go there, but his clothes, such as a silky rose-colored jacket and matching pajama-bottom pairing or a sheer sleeveless trench with bathrobe-like pink piping, brought to mind the chicest of lounge wear. 7 Costello Tagliapietra
It's always a treat to see how the duo behind Costello Tagliapietra continues to refine their beautifully draped and gathered jersey dresses — this time with 1940s inspiration. Their masterful execution proves that, in a time when trends rotate at whiplash pace, it's sometimes wise to do one thing and do it very well.

8 Nicole Miller
For her take on the season's ubiquitous sporty chic, Nicole Miller looked to the skate parks. The end result was funky '80s prints of varying degrees of success. Some worked (the stripy looks) and others left us dizzy (we're looking at you, patchwork-print leggings). But the collection had some potential candidates for wardrobe staples as well, such as a leather bomber jacket and bright orange, flowing shirt.

myjobs

▶ Catch up regularly with professional contacts to offer help and share ideas.

Strengthening your network

▶ Don't wait until there are rumors of layoffs to reach out to well-connected colleagues ▶ The most helpful professional networks develop over time

Should the ax fall and your job get severed, you'll have to get by with a little help from your work friends. But there's a big problem: If you're like the average laid-off employee, your friends will all be left behind in that same building, which is clearly firing more than hiring these days.

That's why career counselors recommend you foster industry friendships far beyond the block where you work now, while you're still employed.

"It's much easier to have that network ready in place when you need it than to try to scramble and connect the people at the last minute," About.com job-seeker guru Alison Doyle cautions. "Then, all of a sudden you're begging people."

Instead, agrees "Connecting With Success" author Kathleen Barton, your network should be a long-standing structure, a regular exchange of favors and tips.

"It's about building mutually beneficial relationships where you're not always asking for help when you're contacting them," she says. "Maybe you're giving updates or finding out how they're doing or how you can support them."

Or maybe you're just calling to say howdy — one lunch-hour phone call at a time. "Don't try to build a network overnight," Doyle advises. "Take it one step at a time. Spend a little bit of every day working on it, looking for new contacts."

DREW HINSHAW
letters@metro.us

The little reasons

Great networking is about using those little excuses to reach out to a mere acquaintance.

▶ "There are so many creative ways you can do that," says Barton. "Rather than Christmas, when everybody gets cards, I send Thanksgiving cards to let [people] know I'm thinking about them."

Get schooled by 'South Park' creators

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Trey Parker and Matt Stone made a guest appearance at NYU for mtvU's 'Stand In' series ▶ What the unlikely professors had to say to students

Trey Parker and Matt Stone have already taught America's youth about art, religion and war, but last week they gave some lessons in person — in a New York University writing class.

The "South Park" creators surprised a class on "Storytelling Strategies" for mtvU's "Stand In." The Tony Award winners told students to keep their stories simple.

Quoted

"It's so cool to talk and pretend like we know what we're doing."
MATT STONE

"We started to learn that simple was better," Parker told the class. "But we had to learn that all over again with everything we did — 'South Park,' 'Team America,' 'Book of Mormon.'"

"It's so cool to talk and pretend like we know what we're doing," added Stone.

MTV's 24-hour college network, mtvU, will air Stone and Parker's "Stand In" to more than 750 college campuses; the episode will also be available on demand at mtvU starting Oct. 3.

A "South Park" behind-the-scenes documentary will premiere on Comedy Central on Sunday, Oct. 2, and the show will return for its 15th season on Wednesday, Oct. 5.

Past "Stand In" participants have included Madonna, Kanye West, John Legend, Kareem Abdul Jabbar, Russell Simmons, Tom Wolfe, Nas, Marilyn Manson, Snoop Dogg, Sen. John McCain and Sting. REUTERS

What the job market will look like in 2031

We asked Rohit Talwar, CEO of forecasting firm Fast Future, for a report 20 years in advance Hint: Start working on your farming skills now

Congrats to Apple University, class of 2031?

"School funding will be a huge issue because of the booming costs of looking after retirees. That's why companies will sponsor schools. In developed countries, the barrier between business and education will be blurred. Everything will be commercial and sponsored. If kids go to a school sponsored by a particular company, they might have to work for that company during the school breaks. Alternatively, they might pay one percent of their later income to the company that funded their school."

In the classroom

No more teachers, no more books? Well, not quite, but school is about to change:

- "By 2031, education will have changed enormously, especially in developing countries. Technology will act as a teacher. There will be a teacher, but he or she will be many miles away."
- "Teachers will be a luxury. We'll pay heavily for the specialization they provide, as technology can take care of most of the teaching."

Bad news for bank tellers, good news for nurses

"Bank tellers will essentially disappear by 2031, as will jobs like subway drivers and check-in agents at airports. Only those who pay a premium will get human service. At the same time, a range of jobs will be created to look after retirees. Vertical farming will provide new careers, as will new forms of transport and technology-based education."

Fashion and retail get a makeover

"3-D printing will revolutionize manufacturing. Customers will be able to walk into a shop and design their own clothes, which will be manufactured on the spot. That will create new jobs, too."

Violence is never deserved

In reading your letters about the 9/11 attacks, I've seen a number that say they were justified and deserved. That in my opinion is complete hogwash and probably misdirected self-hatred. It's like that nonsense about women who dress in a certain way bringing on their own rapes. Countries that are attacked, whether us or India or England or Israel or Indonesia, will not have a perfect, pure response nor should that be demanded of them.
PAUL SIMONS, VIA E-MAIL

9/11 coverage needs a look

CNN should be ashamed, airing an extremely opinionated, political, anti-American program the night before 9/11. I'm not sure this was the appropriate time to give people like Valerie Plame, Cindy Sheehan and others a political platform. To include them in a program celebrating the brave men and women of 9/11 is an insult to the memories of the true heroes of Sept. 11. MICHAEL CHIMENTI, OAKLAND GERDENS

Television coverage of 9/11 dealt mostly with the emotional turmoil of survivors' experiences. What was missing was the very controversial explanation of what really happened: How did the buildings fall so fast? Why did building 7 collapse? Flight 93's debris field spread out over eight miles. The Internet is filled with websites on these subjects but not a word from the media; it really is worth a look.
FRANK ST. GEORGE, EAST ROCKAWAY

Obama, wake up to Egypt

Where is the condemnation from the U.N., the president and the secretary of state for the burning of the Israeli embassy in Egypt? The president is "concerned" — it's a disgrace not to condemn those he calls "freedom fighters." What a farce.
JOAN BACHMAN, HAZLET, NJ

No one lied about Iraq War

RE: "REMEMBER HOW WE GOT HERE ...": In response to Brayden Simms' remark, "By now most Americans have accepted the fact that we were lied into a self-destructive war," what does he mean by "fact"? I refer Mr. Simms to Melanie Phillips' book, "The World Turned Upside Down," Chapter 3, "The Iraq War." There was no lying, and Phillips lays out how such a claim is itself a distortion of the truth.

Horoscope

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Unfortunately, you might be forced to associate with people who make you feel extremely uncomfortable. Suppress any abrasive comments and remain tactful at all times.
♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. If you've been sweeping a number of unpleasant tasks under the rug, it might turn out to be the day of reckoning. Unfortunately, you won't be able to put off burdensome tasks.
♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Don't fall into a trap made by someone you consider to be a friend but who is always trying to bait you into an argument about politics or religion.
♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. You must know that making unreasonable demands or requests on your mate or family members will be rejected, so why go down that avenue? Don't be a troublemaker.
♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Waking up on the wrong side of the bed might put you in a bad mood all day long. You could even get steamed about things you've always tolerated previously.
♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. This might not be one of your better days where money is concerned. It would be best not to take on any new financial obligations or pay out what you can't afford to lose.
♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Strong, unexpected opposition could be awaiting you from a nest of people who think differently than you. Keep yourself from overreacting.
♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Something you never promised is likely to be expected of you anyway. Rather than go to battle over it, do it if you have the time.
♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Unless you can avoid the company of those who have superior attitudes, you can expect to be bossed around a bit. However, I doubt you'll stand by and take it.
♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Those who are usually around to pick up the pieces and/or back you up aren't likely to be there for you when you need them the most. You had better be prepared to be totally self-reliant.
♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Don't get angry and try to force compliance on those you thought were in accordance with your proposals but obviously aren't. It's not their fault.
♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Unless you can say no and mean it, you're likely to open yourself up to being pressured into doing something you dislike by someone who knows how to manipulate you. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

'With me all year'

'Fireman Ed' remembers friends he lost on 9/11 Jets' No. 1 fan — and former Harlem firefighter — tries to separate tragedy from favorite team

AL BELLO/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Ed "Fireman Ed" Anzalone was working as a firefighter in Harlem on 9/11.

"Fireman Ed," the iconic Jets fan who raucously leads the green and white faithful in cheers, was entering his 15th year as a New York City fireman on Sept. 11, 2001.

Ed Anzalone lived and grew up in Queens and is proud of his career as a fireman which began in Brooklyn before moving on to Harlem. He had just ended a shift that morning and was home when one plane, then two, slammed into the World Trade Center towers. There was no immediate call for Anzalone or his truck to report to Ground Zero, but as Anzalone watched the smoke pouring from the buildings, he quickly grasped the tragedy.

"I knew when those buildings were hit, a lot of our guys were going to die that day," Anzalone told Metro.

That day, 343 firefighters were lost. Like his brethren, Anzalone attended more funerals than he can remember.

"Going to so many funerals, that was tough. You watch the kids grow up, growing up without a father," Anzalone said. "You try to do what you can to help, whatever you can."

There was never a point Anzalone didn't consider spending three hours last night inside MetLife Stadium as "Fireman Ed."

"The anniversary of 9/11 will always be with me all year," Anzalone said. "The sensation you see now, it will leave. The press? They will leave. How I honor that day, remember it — it has nothing to do with football or the game that night."

343
Number of New York City firefighters who lost their lives 9/11. Anzalone's truck in Harlem wasn't called, but he knew many killed that day.

Three things we saw ...

1 Settle down: After a lot of pregame pomp and circumstance to commemorate the 10th anniversary of the Sept. 11 attacks, the Jets came out a little too amped to play. On Dallas's opening drive, the Jets continually overplayed the ball, leaving Tony Romo to pick apart the Jets' secondary.

2 Response: After watching Dallas march down the field in emphatic fashion, the Jets had their chance to respond and instead, produced a three-and-out.

3 Dez-aster: Second-year wide receiver Dez Bryant is clearly becoming a star. The Jets used both Darelle Revis and Antonio Cromartie on him, but nothing seemed to slow him down. METRO/KD

▶ Redskins 28, Giants 14

1 Gross: Rex Grossman has been on the wrong end of many jokes during his career but yesterday the gag was on Big Blue. The journeyman made his first start since 2007 and eviscerated the undermanned Giants secondary.

2 Mental miscues: New York suffered through eight penalties, a handful of drops, multiple missed assignments, four sacks allowed and a blocked field goal en route to the embarrassingly ineffective performance.

3 Run!: Head coach Tom Coughlin said during the preseason the Giants would go back to making the running game the backbone of the offense, yet the Giants only rushed for 75 yards on 20 carries. TONY WILLIAMS

▶ Piazza watches his game-winning home run from 10 years ago at Shea Stadium.

Ten years on: Piazza HR still resonates

- Mets-Braves was first professional sporting event in NYC after Sept. 11
- Homer helped city breathe sigh of relief after unspeakable tragedy

Ten days after the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001, New York City, like the nation, was in a state of shock as smoke rose from where gleaming monuments had stood.

Industries halted as the world watched the unforgettable images that emanated from Manhattan. Included was Major League Baseball, which suspended play for five days.

On the night of Sept. 21, the Braves and Mets contested the first games in New York City since the attacks. Shea Stadium had a visible police presence.

www.metro.us
WWW.METRO.US/SPORTS
READ MORE ABOUT PIAZZA'S MAGIC MOMENT

The game was secondary until the bottom of the eighth inning though.

The Braves had a 2-1 lead and Queens-native Steve Karsay was pitching. Matt Lawton led off the frame for the Mets with a groundout to Rey Sanchez. The next batter, Edgardo Alfonzo, worked a walk before being replaced by pinch-runner Desi Relaford.

To the plate came Mike Piazza.

A decade later, the only relevant detail of the Mets' 3-2 win is Piazza's game-winning, two-run home run.

"Certainly, in retrospect, if anyone was going to have a moment for the Mets in those days, it had to be Mike. It absolutely had to be Mike. It typified who he was, what he meant to that team, to be the guy to step forward to deliver the hit that won that game and refocus people, even for the most fleeting second, back to the pennant race," WFAN Mets radio play-by-play announcer Howie Rose told Metro.

Piazza caught a ceremonial first pitch from former teammate John Franco prior to the Mets' game last night.

"I think he has a deeper appreciation for what that night and specifically what that home run meant every year since," Rose said.

US Open: Novak in Nadal's head?

Is Novak Djokovic in Rafael Nadal's head?

So far this year, the answer has been an unequivocal yes.

Djokovic has beaten Nadal in five finals and on three surfaces, including the big stage of the Wimbledon final, during his incredible 2011.

Now, the two best players in the world will tangle for the U.S. Open championship today.

"This year I lost the last five finals against [Djokovic] so this will be the sixth," Nadal said. "That's an advantage for him. He's obviously the favorite for the final.

"I know I have to do something better than the other matches to try and change the situation, and that's what I'm going to try."

Djokovic is ready.

"I know that I have a game that is good enough to win against him," Djokovic said after he fended off double-match point against Roger Federer in the semifinals. "I proved that this year in three different surfaces, so I believe that I have a good chance."

HAVE YOU EVER EXPERIENCED
a Traumatic or Life-Threatening Event?
SINCE THE TRAUMA, have you:
• Had nightmares or flashbacks? • Tried to avoid thinking or talking about it? • Felt jumpy or anxious? • Become less connected with people around you, or less interested in activities you used to enjoy?
If so, you may be suffering from post-traumatic stress disorder or PTSD. The Mood and Anxiety Disorders Program at the Mount Sinai School of Medicine is conducting a study of an investigational medication that may help relieve your PTSD symptoms. You may be eligible to participate if you have PTSD and are 21-65 years old.
Participation involves a thorough psychiatric and medical screening. You will be compensated for your time.

Taking Antidepressants but still feeling depressed?
Are you taking an antidepressant medication for an episode of Major Depressive Disorder, but only feeling partially better?
If you are at least 18 years old you may qualify to participate in a research study involving an investigational medication for the treatment of depression. All eligible study participants will receive investigational study drugs, coverage for their current prescription antidepressant, and study-related care at no cost.
FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL (212) 358-7071

DO YOU HAVE A SHORT FUSE?
DO YOU EVER BREAK THINGS WHEN YOU ARE MAD?
DO YOU EVER GET PHYSICAL?
If so, you may be eligible to participate in a personality study at the Mount Sinai School of Medicine. We are interested in studying people with different types of personalities. Participants must be between 18-60 and medically healthy.
Reimbursement will be provided.
For more information, please call (212) 241-9775 to speak with a member of our staff.
